

Danny Jorgensen

Consultant

Danny is a GVGroup consultant, providing a broad range of research and analytical support with over five years of experience working as a consultant in the financial services industry both domestically and internationally.

Danny continues to be involved with benchmark and cost analysis studies including best practices assessments to assist banks with improving efficiencies in their operational areas of credit risk for credit, debit and commercial products. Danny also has significant expertise in building and maintaining databases, networks, and assessing business requirements for various projects.

Prior to joining GVGroup in 2005, Danny was Director of Dealer Operations for the Western US with Door-2-Door Auctions, a San Mateo, CA-based internet company providing services to sellers for eBay auctions. In addition, Danny has held positions as operations manager with Worldwide Express, an international shipping company, and as a sales associate for FunXS, which provided video game and sports events at trade shows. Danny holds a B.S. in Business Administration from the University of Colorado at Boulder.
